Learn Exp	0	4	8	38	30	12	6	4.6

Heller was thought to be enthusiastic. Her lectures were clear, organized, and informative and she used lots of examples.

Students thought the assignments were time consuming and challenging. They felt that more specific instructions about the assignments was needed, along with a marking scheme. Some found the marking harsh and too specific, and also wished for feedback/comments.

Tutorials would have helped students to understand the material better.

Although he was described as pleasant and approachable, many noted his becoming sidetracked had an effect on students' ability to determine what was important in lectures.

Many students appreciated the balance of views explained on a given topic, however, a background of political knowledge was required. Expectations for assignments were not communicated well.

Loranger's communication and instructions were poorly conveyed, although the instructor made good use of Powerpoint and examples and was enthusiastic. The main themes of the readings were not connected with the lecture content.
