Many students said Oesch was very good, presented with enthusiasm, and explained points clearly. However, students generally found tutorials and TAs unhelpful especially regarding the case report assignments.

Students also disliked that lecture and test material differed greatly and they would have liked more opportunities for evaluation.

Many students felt Oesch was a good instructor and lecturer. He was knowledgeable enthusiastic and used effective, real world examples and stories to explain points.

Lectures and Tutorials lacked value as tests were focussed on readings, and material from readings were absent from lectures.

Students would benefit from tests with less memorization and multiple choice and more critical thinking. Also students would like to see more carefully worded questions and more realistic practice questions.

Students generally felt Oesch was a good lecturer, but too often strayed from relevant material, in a material heavy course. Also, the value of the tutorials and lectures were no high as most test material came from the textbook, which was not taught.

Most students would have preferred more assignments to spread out the weight. Many felt there was too much reading for one course. Also tests should have had a greater focus on concepts and less on memorization.
